Aurecon South Africa

Aurecon provides engineering, management and specialist technical services for public and private sector clients globally. The group's government industry team supports cities and regional and national governments in providing a comprehensive range of services.

The team's technical competencies span the entire infrastructure life cycle – from planning, design and construction to operations and maintenance – and encompass services related to energy, housing, transport, solid waste and sanitation, as well as water and wastewater.

Aurecon's integrated, one-stop approach to meeting service delivery challenges extends beyond engineering solutions and includes in-depth expertise on a range of operational, institutional and environmental aspects of infrastructure delivery.

The group is renowned for its ability to partner with government entities toward providing communities with high-quality, cost-effective and sustainable services. Recognised for planning and community consultation that leads to successful development outcomes, Aurecon has developed a number of consultation techniques to support integrated, cost-effective solutions that take account of broad-based project and policy objectives, including community surveys, workshops, public meetings, forums and focus groups.

i@Consulting

i@Consulting (Pty) Ltd is a leading specialist in providing infrastructure asset management (IAM) solutions. It prepared national IAM guidelines for local government in South Africa and has been recognised for its inputs to international documents, including the IIMM and imminent ISO for asset management. The company has assisted dozens of organisations in South Africa over the past eight years to develop a sound framework for the management of their infrastructure and property assets – including metros and other local government clients. The company addresses the need for improved management practices at the strategic, tactical and operational levels of the organisation, across all technical sectors, embracing corporate risk as well as financial and performance management. i@Consulting has been responsible for training hundreds of municipal officials in IAM, as well as many others through material availed for use by IMESA. Appropriate solutions are crafted through the combined expertise of the company's engineers, management consultants, asset management specialists, trainers, accountants, financial planners, urban planners and economists, data analysts, systems experts and GIS specialists – all available under one roof.
